

Sandra Gioia Treadway Librarian of Virginia

Unfinished Business: What the 19th Amendment Didn't Do Senator Jennifer McClellan leads a virtual panel discussion on voting rights

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT: Ann Henderson, Communications Manager

804.692.3611, ann.henderson@lva.virginia.gov

RICHMOND, VIRGINIA – Join Virginia State Senator Jennifer McClellan and historians Lauranett Lee and Megan Taylor-Shockley for a fascinating virtual talk on the timely topic of voting rights on Thursday, October 8, 2020. Sponsored by the Library of Virginia, this panel discussion explores the struggle for the vote that remained for many citizens after the passage of the 19th Amendment. Extending the right to vote to women in 1920 was a milestone in American history, but much work remained to ensure that all citizens had a fair and equal voice in governing the country and shaping its policies. Moderated by Senator McClellan, historians Lee (a visiting lecturer in the University of Richmond's Jepson School of Leadership Studies) and Taylor-Shockley (an author and former professor of history at Clemson University) will discuss the fundamental question of citizenship through obstacles that limited suffrage to some Americans, including the Equal Rights Amendment (first introduced in 1923), extending citizenship to America's Indigenous peoples, eliminating the poll tax and literacy tests, and the continuing advocacy for restoration of rights to felons. This event complements the Library's exhibitions We Demand: Women's Suffrage in Virginia and Unfinished Business. See registration details below.

VIRTUAL PANEL DISCUSSION

Unfinished Business: What the 19th Amendment Didn't Do

Thursday, October 8, 2020 | 5:00-6:00 PM | Free

Place: Online | Cost: Free

Register at: https://register.gotowebinar.com/register/5930163597010684427

After registering, you'll receive a confirmation email containing information about joining the webinar.

For more information, contact Emma Ito at emma.ito@lva.virginia.gov or 804.692.3726.

800 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia 23219

www.lva.virginia.gov

Please visit our website at www.lva.virginia.gov and follow us on social media to find online resources, virtual events, and other ways to engage with the Library.

About the Library of Virginia

The Library of Virginia is the state's oldest institution dedicated to the preservation of Virginia's history and culture. Our online offerings attract more than 4 million website visits per year, and our resources, exhibitions, and events bring in more than 100,000 visitors each year. The Library's collections, containing more than 129 million items, document and illustrate the lives of both famous Virginians and ordinary citizens.

###

September 23, 2020